On his own responsibility William A Brady added yesterday to the compli-Brady added yesterday to the complicated theatre schedule arranged by the Board of Health the ten minutes to three matines. This was introduced at the little Belmont Theatre along with "I.O. U." a play by Hector Turnbull and Willard Mack. As the public has been advised to keep as much as possible in the open air and as the time of the performance was set down for 2 o'clock, it is possible that Mr. Brady's innovation may not be a success.

tion may not be a success.
When "The Chest," by Hector Turn-bull, a successful writer of scenarios, was shown at the Strand two years ago, was shown at the Strand two years ago, werd went out that it was a model of its kind. Its story was said to be dramatic, but above all, the cinema was said to be so cleverly made that it was possible to gather some idea of what it was about. Mr. Turnbull and Willard Mack converted the scenes into a play which Mr. Brady presented yesterday with Mary Nash and Jose Ruben in the isseding roles. There are three acts which pass in Washington. Two are in the drawing room of a prosperous families of the serious property of the serious and told his friends of his serious. An Extravagant Wife.

The piece possesses but a solitary situation." The first two acts do no more than establish the extravagance of a wife who is pursued by the creditors to whom she owen money. She tries gambling in the stock market to pay her bills and even uses $10,000 which is entrusted to her as treasurer of a charitable committee. Everything is lost, yet the stolen money must be produced within two days.

She seeks to borrow from the East Indian, who has previously indicated his devotion to her only to be smibbed. He consents to make the loan on his own terms. She accepts, but even in this crais does not lose her sense of business. She telephones her broker to notify her when the money is received.

tify her when the money is received. He does this later, but she still refuses to keep her part of the agreement. Then her Oriental lover brands her shoulder with an iron, indicating that she is a cheat, and poisons himself. So when her husband and friends arrive there is only the death rattle of the Indian to reward his efforts at revenge. The wife, who has writhed under the pain of the hot iron, is restored to her family still $10,-

An Ignorant Play. There was some brutal thrill in this episode, which was all the play contained of drama. During the first two acts there was abundant dull talk, but it was its illiteracy that distinguished the dialogue. Rarely has such ignorant writing been heard in the theatre, even writing been heard in the theatre, even this year. Mary Nash did something to excuse her extravagance by buying her chiffons with such good taste. They were beautiful, but not nearly so lovely as her glossy waves of black hair. Jose Ruben acted with less than his usual intensity, but he played the East Indian with his unvariable drith and repose. It with his invariable finish and repose. It is surprising to see an actor who can the faults of "I_pO. U." are not to be at-tributed to the actors.

highest point of the war. Every new project and sotivity of a military character is adding a corresponding amount to the tonnage of coal needed for war purposes and raising the amount which must be produced before the end of the year in order to prevent a shortage or suffering.

The increase in the demand for coal for the navy has been about 100 per cent in five months and has reached a basis of about 7,000,000 tons. New ships which are being launched by the Shipping Board are increasing the requirements for bunker purposes.

which are being launched by the Shipping Board are increasing the requirements for bunker purposes.

Millitary cantonments throughout the country which will house about 4,000,000 recruits this winter are being supplied with hundreds of thousands of tons.

Under the distribution plan devised by J. D. A. Morrow of the Federal Fuel Administration coal is being rushed to Government war work in preference to all other needs except those of households and apartment buildings for winter heating. As various mines indicate an increase in weekly output Mr. Morrow is shipping the surplus to the point where is it needed most in furthering the military programme.

CARUSO IS STAR AT MOVIE EXPOSITION

Sings Three Songs and Gathers in Large Sum for Italian Red Cross.

·America's Part in the Great Conflict.

The Motion Picture Exposition, which ppened in Madison Square Garden last night and will continue until next Sunday, formed the means of introducing to the public many interesting features, aside from the latest methods of making and projecting motion pictures. Enrico Caruso opened the exposition with three songs, "The Star Spangled Banner," "Cansona Guerriera," an Italian war song, composed by Giordano, and "Over There." Caruse get a rousing reception when he was introduced by William A. Brady, president of the National Associ-ation of the Motion Picture Industry, but the effect was lost in the enthusiasm which followed his singing of "The Star Spangied Banner." The Strand symphony orchestra, conducted by Carl Edouarde, accompanied Caruso.

There is much to see at the exposition a reproduction of a real first line.

There is much to see at the exposition. A reproduction of a real first line trench has been built in one end of the big garden and hanging above it is a French Spad, a scout plane which for two years aided in the defence of Paris.
Adjoining this interesting war relic is a five inch American slege gun which satually did service at Chateau Thierry when the Merican bare, the movement when the Marines began the movement that has since resulted in breaking through the Hindenburg line. And up n the gallery there is a complete shipyard establishment, with men performing tasks which are both enlightening and interesting. Plates which are to be used later in ships are here fitted and riveted together. Each day they are to be taken to the yard from which they came and placed in position while putting in a full eight hours work, assemble at the exposition to furnish music for the inquisitive throng. These mechanic musicians are paid over time wages and according to the press agent cost the shipbuilders $750 each night. The Woman Land Army has an exhibit, a realistic farm, stocked with the usual small barnyard animals. The army intends to dispose of the growing vegetables and devote the funds derived from the sales to the continuation of its work. The attendants are in their neat blue uniforms which consist of a blouse and bloomers.

Another feature of the exposition is Another feature of the exposition is the Gas Defence Division of the Chemical Welfare Service, United States Army. This is a complete plant, and will be in operation Monday. It is so arranged that the raw products for making gas masks will be on view and as the work progresses and the finished product comes through at the other end the masks will be tested, inspected and a hipped abroad. Thirty girls will work steadily on the masks and it is expected 450 masks will be turned out each day.
